The Prez sez

In a recent discussion I had with the JCSA Executive Vice President, Lura Johnson, she advised me that our Merlin Marauder cowboy club is now responsible for mowing, weeding and maintaining our cowboy range. In the past, JCSA employees Tracy and Joe had been occasionally mowing and trimming the grass as a courtesy to our club. Lura stated our club would be able to utilize JCSA equipment to perform the necessary range maintenance. This will include their riding lawn mower and weed-eater.

It would be really helpful if one or more club members volunteered to maintain our cowboy range on an as needed basis. The best time to perform this maintenance would probably be on our stage set-up day (Friday before our monthly match). JCSA Officers are now referring to it as the "cowboy range" so it can be assumed we now have "pride of ownership"---at least on a proprietary basis. Please let me know if you would like to share this responsibility with other interested club members.

Once again, the Battle of Rogue River is coming to fruition. We are on track and on schedule. We will post a sign-up sheet for the scheduled work parties soon so keep an eye out and get your tools ready.

Finally, I would like to know if there are any MM members still interested in attending monthly practice matches where coaching by an experienced SASS shooter would be provided. Please contact me or MD Johnny Dingus if interested.

That's all for now---happy trails.

Yer pard,
Bear Bone Smith

Dispatches from the Territorial Governor by Sweetwater Jack

This month's article is going to be a REAL mish-mash of subjects. The main source of the "stew" this month what transpired at Winter Range this year, and what was discussed at the Territorial Governors' Meeting there..

Breaking news from WR. Shooters were having the cant on their cross draws measured. The story I heard was that a shooter who had been wearing the same (style) holster since??? (he has a SASS number less than 100), was told his cross draw was illegal as it was canted beyond the legal 30 degrees from the vertical. (The rumors were that it was 32 degrees, and that although he attempted to adjust it before shooting, it moved back while he was shooting, receiving a stage DQ.

Enforcement of the 30 degree from the vertical "cant" is becoming stronger and stronger at major matches and will continue to be so for the foreseeable future. A problem among us "mature males" is the old "taper factor". Back in the day when we bought "tapered" shirts to match our "manly physiques" that "tapered" from our broad shoulders to our slim waists, it was not a problem. Then, one day we noticed that our shirts and our bodies were "tapering" in opposite directions..... As we developed "manly waist/bellies" the belt "dunlaps" appeared, and our cross-draw rigs were affected also. Our carefully constructed-at-exactly-thirty-degrees cross-draw holsters move from the legal 30 degrees to as much as 40 degrees when we strap on the gun belts.

Remember, that the rules state that the 30 degrees from vertical cant must be maintained while the guns are in the holsters and ON OUR BODIES. Might it be time to rethink our cross-draw "tilt"? Also, some of us slide the cross-draw holster on the belt from the side, where it's generally more comfortable to walk around with, toward the "centerline" as we move to the firing line. This can also add to the cant. Harbor Freight sells a fine protractor for checking angles for around ten bucks. Maybe I'll buy one for the club to keep in the range house so we can check our rigs.

The only other things discussed during the meeting were the disabling of the locking bar on Side-by-Side shotguns so that they do NOT lock closed, and will drop open without working the release lever! Certain shooters in Arizona were found to be shooting the double gun by HOLDING IT CLOSED WHILE FIRING, then just letting go of the fore end to let it drop open and shuck the empties while stuffing new shells in, closing it and holding it closed again while the next shots were fired! UNBELIEVEABLE!!! (Probably the same guys that were "coning" their 12 gauge shells in 20 gauge crimp dies to make it easier to load then in their guns.....) This is a COMPLETELY ILLEGAL and STUPID thing to do... The seconds gained are NOT worth your life!!! Gamers? No, IDIOTS!!

The other thing discussed was the Ruger Montado revolver and the Montado hammer. A Montado shaped hammer is legal in all large frame guns including old model Vaqueros, new model Vaqueros, Colts and Colt clones. A similar Bisley hammer can only be installed in a Bisley framed gun at this time. The Montado Revolver itself is legal for SASS but the serrations on the front of the grip frame must be removed first.

And now for something completely different:

Marbles showed a new rear sight for rifles, at the SHOT show in January and it has now been shipped to suppliers. This is NOT a legal rear sight on SASS main match rifles, or on, long-range rifles, at this time. Contrary to what the advertising says, it has NOT been approved by SASS for use in Cowboy Action Shooting... (Shades of the Henry "Big Boy") Click on the link

<http://www.marblearms.com/bullseyeSights.html>

Why not legal?.....peep sights are legal on the tang, but not legal on the barrel because the barrel mounted peep sight has not been specifically covered/approved in the rules/mods...

QUOTE

Original and replicas may be used in competition provided they are in good, safe working order. In each of the respective sections, allowed modifications are listed. Just because a manufacturer designs a part or firearm for this sport or just because a firearm was available, does not necessarily mean it is legal for competition. Only the modifications referenced here as allowed are approved. All others are illegal. Shooters Hand Book, page 3.
